Kamloops Residential Real Estate Market Sales Slightly Below for July

KAMLOOPS, B.C. – August 5th, 2022. Residential real estate sales for the month of July in the region slid down to pre-pandemic activity, reports the Association of Interior REALTORS® (the Association).

A total of 1,196 residential unit sales were recorded across the Association region, marking a 33.3% decrease compared to the number of units sold during the hot market of July 2021.

“Seasonally, it is not out of the ordinary to see a dip in sales in the summer, although real estate market activity across most regions in the province was below average last month, not just within the interior,” says the Association of Interior REALTORS® President Lyndi Cruickshank, adding “a number of factors, or even a combination of factors such as the interest rate hikes, recommencement of travel and the school break could all be reasons consumers pushed pause on their real estate plans as they focused on enjoying the hot summer days.”

New residential listings saw a welcomed upswing of 8.1% within the region compared to the same period last year with 2,488 new listings recorded. The overall active listings also saw a healthy injection with an increase of 56.8% compared to July 2021 totalling 7,698 listings currently on market.

“We are seeing inventory starting to accumulate, slowly moving upward to healthier levels of inventory, which is a welcomed relief for prospective buyers. However, the higher mortgage interest rates are still impacting the real estate market with some home buyers finding it more difficult to qualify for mortgages,” notes Cruickshank.

“We will have to see what the Bank of Canada does come September. Hopefully, we will see fixed mortgage rates come down and bring some relief for buyers, particularly first-time buyers. Any interest rate relief may see an increase in sales activity returning to the market over the fall months,” adds Cruickshank.

Within the Kamloops and District region, there were 194 residential unit sales recorded in July, down from the 250 recorded in June and a decrease of 38.6% compared to the peak market of July 2021.

The Benchmark price, a better representation of value compared to the average or medium price as it represents a dwelling of “typical attributes”, all saw double-digit increases across all home categories in the Kamloops and District area compared to the same month last year, with the greatest increase occurring within the townhome category with a 32.4% increase coming in at $559,600.

There were 480 new listings added in July 2022 in the Kamloops and District region, which was a welcomed increase of 32.6% compared to the same time last year. Overall inventory, or active listings saw a 126.5% increase compared to July 2021.

“With listings showing signs of rebounding from the extreme inventory drought seen over the last few months, we suspect more market activity in the region to come in the fall months with more options for buyers,” says Cruickshank.
