South Peace River Real Estate Market Records Average October

KELOWNA, B.C. – November 4th, 2022. Residential real estate sales for the month of October in the region saw an increase in inventory while sales held steady, reports the Association of Interior REALTORS® (the Association).

A total of 1,001 residential unit sales were recorded across the Association region in October representing a 43.8% drop in sales compared to the number of units sold during the seasonally uncommon strong market of October 2021; dipping only 7.6% compared to last month.

“Unlike the last two years or so where we saw buyers’ and sellers’ expectations drastically unaligned from each other, a shift from the frenzy earlier this year coupled with the winter seasonal slowdown is bringing some equilibrium to the market amidst rising interest rates,” says the Association of Interior REALTORS® President Lyndi Cruickshank, adding “motivated buyers’ and sellers’ expectations are able to come closer together, resulting in a much more positive home buying and selling experience.”

New residential listings saw a decrease of 9.8% within the region compared to the same month last year with 1,689 new listings recorded. However, the overall inventory provides more options to buyers with a 67.5% increase over the availability in October 2021 with 7,450 units currently on the market.

“It’s nice to see active listings starting to build back up again,” notes Cruickshank, adding “however, we are not quite out of what is considered a seller’s market and into a balanced market.”

In the South Peace River region, there was a total of 36 residential unit sales recorded in October, down 23.4% compared to October 2021; and on par with September 2022’s 37 units sold. There were 16 new listings coming onto market and a total of 257 active listings marking decreases of 20% and 19.4%, respectively, compared to the same time last year.

“It is worth noting that while sales in the South Peace River region seem low in the post-pandemic era they are actually high in relation to pre-pandemic levels,” says Cruickshank.

The average price for single-family homes increased 1.5% compared to October 2021, coming in at $264,700, with average sales price for mobile homes increasing 66.5% and condominiums up 315.3% in year-over-year comparisons.

Given the high stakes on such a significant financial transaction, home sellers and buyers can benefit from the skills of a practiced REALTOR®. Contact your local REALTOR® to find out more about the real estate market and how they can help you achieve your real estate goals.
