South Peace River Real Estate Market Below Average Heading Into December

KELOWNA, B.C. – December 5th, 2022. Residential real estate sales for the month of November in the region saw sales dip heading into the holiday season, reports the Association of Interior REALTORS® (the Association).

A total of 844 residential unit sales were recorded across the Association region in November representing a 48.4% decrease in sales compared to the number of units sold during the hyperactive market of November 2021, with a decrease of 15.6% compared to last month.

“Although the numbers seem far below what we have become accustomed to, comparing sales from this year to last year would be like comparing apples to oranges,” says the Association of Interior REALTORS® President Lyndi Cruickshank, adding that “comparing to a typical seasonal pre-pandemic November would represent a more accurate comparison over the frenzied market over the last few years, which would show that we are currently not that far off from an average November.”

New residential listings saw a moderate decline of 4.6% within the region compared to the same month last year with 1,357 new listings recorded. However, the overall inventory saw a healthy 85.3% boost over the availability in November 2021 with 6,980 units currently on the market; providing more options to buyers.

“While it’s great to see that the number of active listings is higher than it has been for a long time, the market remains tight as new inventory seems to be flattening,” notes Cruickshank, adding “this is not unusual for this time of year as sellers hold off on listing while they are enjoying the holiday season.”

In the South Peace River region, there was a total of 26 residential unit sales recorded in November, down 43.5% compared to November 2021. There were 4 new listings coming onto market and a total of 237 active listings marking decreases of 55.6% and 13.5%, respectively, compared to the same time last year.

“Smaller markets tend to take a little longer to catch up to what we are seeing in the bigger markets and it would seem that the South Peace River region has now caught up to the dampening of demand that has largely been influenced by mortgage rate hikes,” says Cruickshank.

The average price for single-family homes decreased 22.2% compared to November 2021, coming in at $230,661, with average sales prices for manufactured homes down 40.9% and condominiums up 8.2% in year-over-year comparisons.
