

For Immediate ReleaseSouth Peace River Real Estate Market Activity Slightly Below Average

KELOWNA, B.C. – May 4th, 2023. Residential real estate market demand picking up in spring season while supply of inventory struggles to meet buyer demand, reports the Association of Interior REALTORS® (the Association).

A total of 1,226 residential unit sales were recorded across the Association region in April representing a 30.6% decrease in sales compared to the frenzied market of April 2022, yet up compared to March's 1,207 unit sales.

"After a sluggish start to the year we are seeing buyer optimism returning as the busy spring market has arrived," says the Association of Interior REALTORS® President Chelsea Mann, adding that "buyers who hit pause on their real estate ventures amid rising interest rates last year have started to resume their searches with different expectations in mind."

New residential listings saw a decrease of 21.4% compared to the same time last year with 2,362 new listings recorded in April. While an increase of 41.5% of total inventory compared to April 2022 is a welcomed increase, the total number of active residential listings remained low for April with only 6,259 across the Association region. The highest percentage increase in active listings was recorded in the South Okanagan for a second consecutive month with a total increase of 64.5% compared to the same month last year.

"The chronic lack of supply has been a common theme for the last few years with new listings simply not hitting the market as actively to meet the demand of growing communities," notes Mann, adding "the limited housing stock makes it really challenging for motivated buyers to find what they are looking for within their price range."

In the South Peace River region, there was a total of 28 residential unit sales recorded last month, down 46.2% compared to April 2022 yet up slightly from March's 26 unit sales. There were 13 new listings representing a 23.1% decrease in year-over-year comparison. There was a total of 216 active listings in April marking a 0.5% decrease compared to the same month last year.

"On average the South Peace River region's market activity sees about 30 sales in a month, so we are only slightly below average for this month," says Mann, adding "as the busy spring season picks up, it is likely that market activity in this region will see a return to average."

The average price for single-family homes decreased 4.1% compared to April 2022, coming in at $260,621, with average sales prices for condominiums increasing 192.3% to $138,600.
